"Dead" heads—Obituary notices.

Parole is running off with the Englishmen's money.

Parole still "booms" abroad. Grant is being wretchedly shadowed.

Talmage has cleaned his linen in the blood of his enemies.

"Dead men tell no tales," but obituary notices make up for the discrepancy.

Sherman has returned to Washington, having quit the West with stronger hopes for the vice-presidency in 1880.

We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to attend the 12th exhibition of Simpson county Agricultural and Mechanical Association to be held at Franklin, May 31st.

One of our Southern exchanges reports collections good. The police collected at a recent ball seventy-nine dollars without searching the women or the fidlers.

The Rev. Dr. T. J. B. of Kentucky, presided over the deliberations of the Southern Baptist Association, at Atlanta. Kentucky always manages to get high seats in the synagogues of the great.

The head-line of the Courier-Journal is the head-light of this locomotive. A rusty nail driven through its heartlessness and clacked back on his "wobbly spine" would be a "sackdologer," just too agonizing.

Think of Hayes' withdrawal of the troops from the polls in 1877 and in 1878 his veto of a law to sustain the withdrawal of the troops and then say, if you dare, that two long years have not made him an automaton of the puerile persuasion in the hands of the wire-pulling "ad-warts."

Warren county's wise head should now say that he would have realized several thousand more for her L. & N. stock if that county had not hurried him in the sale. The stock was disposed of at a profit of about $25,000 to the county, and might have been $10,000 with just a little discretion—mixed with patience.

We were shown on last Tuesday evening a chicken which had four well developed feet and legs. It was a "four-footed" bird. "Call you?" There were "three pairs" of twins (6 babies in all) born within the radius of one mile on the same day last week, at Bellevue, in this county. We've got the legs on you by upwards of several feet. It's your child's play for us to beat four.

John Sherman stated in his recent great (?) speech at Mansfield, Ohio, that "our bonds are quoted higher than any other nation except perhaps Great Britain," which clearly demonstrates the fact that John is a better in-door calculator than off-hand stumper. His Chinese and British securities are rated higher on the market.

The State Legislatures have for the most part, in the past few years lost confidence. The Louisiana Constitutional Convention, now in session has just adopted an article prohibiting the General Assembly from contracting any debt, on the part of the State, except for the purpose of repelling invasion or suppressing insurrection.

This free religious land, this Union of anti-church and State celebrity, is now being disgracefully represented by our "loyal" Massachusetts brethren. The Rev. Chas. Brown, an Adventist preacher is being threatened by the people with a coat of tar and feathers, and a free ride on a rail on account of his religious teachings. These are the interpreters of the Constitution whose generosity (?) the South is asked to accept.

It speaks rather badly for somebody that the country is unable to know truthfully what character of influence the soldier really exerts at the polls. One party says that the troops guarantee free and full elections, while the other asserts that they only bolster up such frauds as Kellogg, Patterson & Co. It is passing strange that we can not learn the truth of things in our own borders. The people are too inert with lying politicians. That "what's the matter with Hamish."

The Yeoman's bent is by no means lost in the tall grass of the State-house yard. Hear him: "He's a better yard, for farmer State. But getting the votes that makes great."

Worse than the unpardonable sin—dead a rope to hang yourself; and yet there are men in this country who can get any amount of backing in defiance of the statutes.

The question just now with Ohio Republicans—Garfield or Sherman. Both loyal sons from the tents of illustrious sires.

"Whose ancient but ignoble blood, Has crept through soundrels ever since the Flood."

Your only voice in the Government is when you vote for a member of Congress. [Extract from John Sherman's late speech.]

The President is elected by partisan 7 to 8 Commission, of course.

The old set of China in the White House, about to be supplanted by a new set from France, has brilliant savoring covers, with centers showing a shield, stars and stripes. We would suggest for the new set, a spread-eagle on toast.

Henry Ward Beecher lectured in Nashville last night to an immense audience at $1.50 each. By Jove! its getting to be a fat take to be a notoriously first class preacher; even the politicians are being sadly distanced by Beecher and Talmage.

If this is an age of advancement why does not the short-hand practically supersede the present stilted system of orthography? Now that's a question for school-house debating clubs, and we hope "the pen, or sword" will have an all summer rest.

The women never satisfied with the multifarious occupations of the home circle, have been holding a national suffrage convention in St. Louis, during the past week. The Supreme Court is in turn the next corpse to receive internment at their hands.

The Pennsylvania Senate has passed a resolution by strict party vote, to appoint a committee to receive ex-President Grant at San Francisco on his return home. All the Republican states will be for Grant for President and Sherman for vice-President. Remember the order.

There be one thing which more than any other excites the selection of the colored man to the white position. It is a small man. [Nashville American.]

Now, really, don't you think there is more poetry than truth in this? The sentiment is capital, but is it of that kind as would really pay his fare, first-class, to that land where the full fruition of the 14th and 15th amendments could be realized.

The National Colored Convention, now in session at Nashville, simply stands for the fact that there are certain men in the South who have unwillingly been dropped from political leadership in late years and they have for restoration. The colored race may expect no good from the Convention.

If only a small proportion of the speakers in the Louisville convention told anything remotely akin to the truth, it's a down right misfortune that the State requires such a limited number of officers, and it's a fact for temperate men to shudder at that the Democratic party is so deeply in debt it can never hope to pay even the interest on its liabilities.

We acknowledge the receipt of a speech delivered by Hon. Jas. A. McKenzie in Congress on the 19th of April, against the infamous election laws now disgracing the statutes of our country. Mr. McKenzie has treated the subject with unusual ability, and as a condensed summary of the objections to these laws the speech has no equal on the records of this discussion.

Tenaces of either murder, robbery, suicide or rape were reported from Ohio one day last week, and yet the Republican penny-a-liner, decan Richard Smith, like the sacred war horse, scents the battle only from afar. Grant's life would be in greater danger in Ohio than in Kentucky if the record of crime in this two states is to be taken as evidence.

Walter Evans, Republican candidate for Governor, will commence his canvass by a speech here on June 2nd, County Court house.

"Consistency is a jewel," but doesn't belong to the Presidential crown. Hayes promptly recalled the troops from the South, in 1877, with hopes of gaining the personal friendship of the Southern people. They were wise in sparing such affliction. He now contradicts the justice of his former act by vetoing a bill permanently sustaining that act. Hayes! oh! Hayes!! thou art a very, very weak vessel. In addition to being a President by party fraud.

Hon. Oscar Turner has introduced a bill in Congress abolishing the tax on brandy made from apples and peaches. There never was a more iniquitous law imposed on a poor and honest people and we are gratified to know that the Hon. Oscar is endeavoring to relieve the poor mountaineers who have scarcely any other source of revenue than from the distillation of their fruit.

Unless Mr. Tilden pushes himself forward, secures the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York at the next fall election and triumphs in the race he will stand about as much show for the Democratic nomination for President in 1880 as Hayes does for being handed down to posterity as having one drop of honest blood in his veins. The Courier-Journal could learn a lesson from this if it will.

The Louisville Commercial re-publishes the statements of two witnesses in the trial of the Lincoln assassination case in which Dr. L. P. Blackburn is charged with the impuration of yellow fever infected blankets and clothing during the late war for the intended destruction of Lincoln and the federal army. These charges have been clearly proven false and malicious, yet the Commercial, disregarding the common laws of humanity and decency, reproduces them with the coolness of a midnight assassin. This is what contributes to the defeat of the Republican party in this State and yet the Commercial seems sadly ignorant of the fact. Until that party is fortunate enough to possess a fair minded, impartial press in this State nothing will ever remain to save the drooping colors of ignominious defeat.

Redemption of Christian County Bonds.

It will be remembered that in the year 1868 Christian county subscribed $200,000 to the Evansville, Henderson & Nashville Rail Road. This subscription was made in the shape of bonds, due in 30 years and bearing 7 per cent. Interest per annum. In consideration of which the county received stock therein to the amount of $240,000. The road was afterward consolidated with others, forming the St. Louis & Southeastern as it now is. This $240,000 of stock held by the county has from time to time been subjected to liquidation, having been exchanged for consolidated bonds of the St. L. & S. E. road and these consolidated bonds have also in turn had their round of ill. The fact is, as all informed well know, the county failed to realize but a small percent, finally out of the original amount stock received. But after a judicious management on the part of our faithful Court of Claims, the county now has in hand, as the proceeds of this stock, the sum of $15,000. Other counties along the line have failed to realize anything from identically similar stock. Happily we have. But the question arises as to what disposition shall be made of this $15,000 now on hand. If the county has so stated, in the face of her bonds issued in 1868 for $200,000, that after five years shall have elapsed from their date of issue she should have the power to redeem any or all of said bonds, then we would not now be at sea. When the Court House and Jail bonds were issued this redeeming power was embodied in their faces. These bonds have all been redeemed and canceled. But then to come to the point of these remarks: Christian county has $15,000 on hand. Her railroad bonds are not due until 30 years from 1868. The county failed to empower herself to redeem them before the 30 years shall have expired. There is no authority for the investment of this amount on hand, and such an authority can only be had by special act of the Legislature. Then what shall be done? It is evident that it would be greatly beneficial to the financial interests of our county to redeem these bonds annually, and not allow the entire amount to fall heavily upon us at one time. Much more easily could the county pay $7,000 annually for thirty consecutive years, than $200,000 in one sum on the thirtieth year. Every one will concede this. Then some will say create a sinking fund and set aside this prorated $7,000 annually, for the payment of the $200,000 on the thirtieth year when due. This is not so advantageous to the county, even though an act of the Legislature could be obtained for the investment of the sinking fund in bonds bearing an equal rate of interest as that of the county's bonds for this only implies competition and consequently danger of loss. The true policy of financing demands that liabilities shall be satisfied actually as the liabilities become available, thereby placing the individual on a basis of no complication, but all simplicity and safety. This will clearly be the view of the Court of Claims, if what we can gather from members thereof is to any extent to be relied on as official. The Court of Claims will meet on the 19th day of May. Members of the Court are yet undecided as to the policy to be pursued by that judiciary but sure it is that the question of the disposition of the county's revenue, with reference to the redemption of our bonds, will command its serious consideration. We find by investigation that there is a strong disposition on the part of members of that Court to adopt the following plan for the settlement of this bonded railroad indebtedness:

Place in a hat all the numbers representing each a bond for say $1,000 of this $200,000 series of 1868. Draw therefrom fifteen numbers, which shall represent the fifteen bonds to be redeemed. The Court to order that said bonds shall be within thirty days thereafter presented for payment and upon said order not being complied with by the holders of said bonds the interest entire to cease from that date. While this method of canceling the county's indebtedness seems out of the order of consistent action, yet, it can not be denied that such an act would be beneficial to the county's financial interests. But it should meet the approbation of the holders of these bonds. Sure it is that the county will pay less interest on her indebtedness as it decreases by the annual redemption and as interest on the amount decreases in a like proportion will the annual tax levy be decreased in the county. So the bond holder will receive their full face value and at the same time be instrumental in reducing the taxes of the county and so his own. Christian county deserves credit and confidence in the broadest sense for her honesty in paying every dollar of her debt at par, while McCracken and Caldwell counties refuse to pay but 50 cents on the dollar of their indebtedness, and while Muhlenberg refuses to pay but 25; while Tennessee has refused to pay more than 40 cents while Virginia refuses to pay more than 75. How proud should our people feel that nothing save honesty has been our motto, and how fortunate those holders of her bonds who are now offered one hundred cents on the dollar and all accrued interest. In the event the Court adopts the plan as above suggested it will be done deliberately and advisedly and all contestants of the authority will have to resort to the last notch of higher authority. The bondholder will be subjected to legal annoyance and probable loss and can ill afford to quibble about the illegality of the point. Better contribute to the success of a worthy act on the part of the Court of Claims to protect the county's interests, than to "spill hairs" in a contest for personal gain, in which event the eyes of a debt ridden, honest people are open to conviction. No bondholder should desire to take an advantage of the county, through any indiscretion on the part of her officers in framing the words of her promises to pay. The failure to embody in the face of her bonds the power to redeem after five years from date of issue was clearly an oversight on the part of Christian county, or rather on the part of those commissioned to act for her.

But do not understand us to say that we would urge on the Court the propriety of such action as referred to above. In fact we would advise the Court against such an order. Let all things be done decently, at least by the Courts of Justice, and let there be no departure from legal action. If the Court can conscientiously rule that such is in accordance with the laws of our land, founded on principles of exact justice to all, and if the Court can justify itself in any legal precept of decision, then all so well and good, and so mote it be, otherwise we would say apply to the Legislature, that State Incumbent, for proper relief in the premises.

EVANS AND BLACKBURN.
Correspondence Between the two Candidates for Governor.
The following correspondence has passed between Walter Evans, Republican, and Dr. L. P. Blackburn, Democratic candidate for Governor:
EVANS TO BLACKBURN.
LOUISVILLE, KY., May 5, 1879.
Dr. Luke P. Blackburn:
My dear Sir—I notice in the newspapers the announcement that you, as the Democratic candidate for Governor, will speak at Mayville on the 9th inst., and at Brookville on the 10th. I hope to be able to go to both places to fill those appointments, and to say if I do, I shall be allowed the pleasure of being there, also the privilege of an equitable division of time.

It is intended going to Mayville, I shall take it as a favor to be informed of the fact.

With great respect, I am very truly yours,
WALTER EVANS.
DR. BLACKBURN'S REPLY.
LOUISVILLE, May 5, 1879.
Hon. Walter Evans:
Dear Sir—You note by Mr. Porch has been received, I am advertised to speak at Mayville on Friday and Brookville on Saturday. I have been quite sick for several days, suffering with sore and ulcerated throat. If I am not better I can not fill either of the appointments. Should I go, it would be imprudent for me to do so, as I am not in the best of health. I shall only make an apology for not speaking at Mayville, and will not go to Brookville.

I have had a long siege and require rest. When I feel sufficiently, I shall with pleasure accompany you to some portions of the State. I am sure that we can get along harmoniously, and part better friends than we now are.

Yours, with respect,
LUKE P. BLACKBURN.

An Irishman, named Pat Malone, was found dead in the Church at Bellevue last Sunday. His death is believed in mystery. He was a plasterer, well known, and liked in the community. His age was about forty years.

WORLDLY WICKEDNESS.

Ten Charges Preferred by the Rev. W. H. Darnall vs. Elder Caruthers.

It will be remembered that the Reverend Mr. Darnall, lately conducted a protracted meeting in the Cumberland Presbyterian church of this city several weeks ago. The telegraphic reports from his home in Lebanon, Tenn., indicate that he has since become very disagreeably involved in a social scandal.

The news comes that he has preferred ten charges against Judge Robt. L. Caruthers, one of the finest lawyers in the land, and professor in Cumberland University.

The first is that, claiming to be a protector of Miss Mary Cahill, and of his household, and a slave by marriage, and claiming as far back as October 22, 1877, to have in his possession evidence of her innocence of writing or mailing vicious anonymous letters, he has not up to the present time published so much of that evidence as would establish her innocence, although she was published as the party upon whom suspicion had fallen as the writer of scandalous anonymous letters received by various parties in Lebanon. The other nine charges are substantially the same as the first. On or about October 1877, reports were circulated that Caruthers had been intimate with Miss Cahill, and a few afterword anonymous letters were sent to Mrs. Hockatt, a wealthy lady of Lebanon, as on terms of great intimacy with the Rev. W. H. Darnall, were extensively circulated. It was supposed that Mrs. Hockatt circulated the reports about Caruthers and Miss Cahill, and that in order to be revenged, Miss Cahill wrote the anonymous letters. The breeze created by this letter resulted in Caruthers' resignation of his office, and the name of Caruthers being stricken from the roll of membership. Investigation of the charges will commence tomorrow in Lebanon.

SHINE-GISH.

It has been several months since an event has happened in this city that awakened such universal interest as the marriage of Rev. L. L. Shine, formerly pastor of the Christian church here, and Miss Corn Gish, a widow and accomplished daughter of Dr. D. G. Gish. The nuptials were celebrated at the Baptist church last Thursday, 8th inst. In the presence of one of the most select and refined audiences ever assembled in Hopkinsville.

At a few minutes past eleven the music of silks announced the approach of the bride party. A subdued murmur of admiration came from the congregation as the attendants came slowly up the aisle and took their appropriate positions, and when the tall and stately groom, and his young and blushing bride entered and took their stand beneath the arch of evergreen and flowers, which was suspended a tasteful program, composed of the initial letters of the happy couple, intense silence prevailed. Elder C. K. Marshall of the Christian Church then uttered the benediction of God upon them through his. After the ceremony the 50 first party consisting of the newly wedded couple; Dr. J. T. Letcher and Miss Lizzie Gish; Mr. J. L. Dorsey; and Miss Louisa Loe; Mr. Walter Garnett and Miss Lucy Day; Mr. E. T. Roberts and Miss Mary Day; and Mr. Tom Long, and Miss Ellen Gish, immediately proceeded to the depot and departed on the 11:45 train for Henderson, the future home of Mr. and Mrs. Shine.

We are requested by the parties interested to thank the members of the Baptist church for proffering the use of their building, (the Christian church) was undergoing repairs and could not be easily used, and also the ladies of that church for the handsome manner in which they decorated the room, and for the sweet music furnished by Prof. Steinhagen and the choir. May they ever be as happy as they deserve, and life will have no clouds for them.

A Horrible Story.

A Snake Taken from the Stomach of a Negro.

The other day a negro man walked into the drug store and told Mat. Stirling that he had been conformed by some enemy who had put snakes into him, and that he wanted something to relieve him. Mat, with great sympathy, explained to him that he was possessed of a proscription communicated to him by his condition. He then showed him several snakes, lizards, capsacons, etc., which he had extracted from those similarly afflicted.

The negro thereupon begged him most piteously to take the reptile out of his stomach, which Mat. affirmed he would undoubtedly do. He then fixed up a good dose of ipecac and prepared a bucket of water. Pretty soon the medicine had the desired effect, and clamping his stomach, closing his eyes and leaving over the bucket, the negro "set to." During this performance Mat. drolly dropped a snake over the negro's shoulder into the bucket without being seen.

When he had emptied his stomach he took a drink and began to investigate the contents of the bucket. Of course he found a snake about twelve inches long, and as he raised it up he exclaimed, "Great God! what is it!" I knowed it was that! I felt it out, and I felt it when it come out of my mouth and now I am as well as ever was in my life. Confound that bigger what he said to me." Mat. then told him a dollars worth of Louisiana to carry in his pocket to prevent a repetition of it, and sent him on his way rejoicing. When last seen he was exhibiting the snake to a crowd of able sympathizers who were telling marvellous stories of snakes and such things which they had seen taken from people before.

The Cabbage Worm.

A correspondent of the Farmer and Fruit Grower thus disposes of the cabbage worm: The cabbage worm, the scourge of Northern and Eastern kitchen gardeners and truck-patch men, for the last four or five years, has been gradually moving over the country, and his march westward has just reached this country. At any rate, it was first made aware of his presence by its depredations on my cabbage patch, and first saw the miller, or butterfly, which lay the eggs, producing the worm, early the present week. The miller is an innocent enough looking white butterfly, having a spread of wings of about two inches, and the worm is a tender green, thing of from a third to a full inch long, according to growth. When the millers are abundant, they flutter in swarms over cabbage patches, and the worms are voracious feeders. But the latter are easily killed, hot water at a temperature of one hundred and twenty-five degrees doing the business effectively. For myself, I attacked with soap-suds made in following way: To one quart of soap, add a teaspoonful of crude carbolic acid, stir and mix thoroughly. Then add a bucket of water (either or soft water is preferable) and one-third of the soap, make a suds and sprinkle same to wet each cabbage thoroughly. Repeat the operation every morning till the worms are destroyed. Of these Prof. Lazenby, of Cornell University, says: "After numerous experiments and very careful trials, we can commend the following remedies, knowing them to be safe, cheap, and effective: First, a solution of one pound of whiting-soup in about six gallons of water, applied two or three times during the season; second, tur-water—prepared by placing a few quarts into a barrel of water, and applying this mixture two or three times during the season." Having no whiting-soup or tar at hand, I used the suds as prepared above, and so far with good results. The worms must be destroyed, because when the cabbages, which have only been slightly eaten by it, come to be dressed for cooking, they will be found to be fouled past decency for eating.

Deep Plowing.

[New York Observer.]

Some twenty years ago there was a man among the agricultural theorists for deep plowing. Every farmer, it was said, had a farm under his hands of great value, where the plow had not yet reached. No matter what the character of the surface and the subsoils were, the plow should go in to its beam. But these men are beginning to get their eyes open. Mr. Geo. E. Waring, Jr., in speaking of the results of ten years' management of "Ogle Farm," says: "About six acres were some seven or eight years ago, plowed about twelve inches deep. The subsoil of blue clay, which was brought to the surface, was a lasting injury to the land. It still shows the ill effect of the treatment, in spite of time and manure. There are some soils that would be benefited by plowing twelve inches deep, but they are scarce." The rule may be said to be: "Never turn an over one or two inches of unfruitful subsoil in one season; and, when no turned up, the land should receive a dressing of manure."

Partial Drainage.

Partial drainage properly carried out answers a good purpose for the present, and is to be recommended in the great majority of cases in the West where the style of farming calls for the drainage of large tracts. The price of farm products and the money capital in the hands of farmers would not warrant a different course. But it should be according to a careful and well-considered plan. Perform the work for all time, so that when carried forward it shall be a perfect whole. I can not believe it is best to put a drain here and one there to serve the present purpose—and it is quite likely not that of the future. For a small amount a sufficient number of levels could be taken and plotted to enable any intelligent farmer to go forward by himself with a system of drainage which would be of the best service now and not to be discarded.

To Judge Cattle.

The following are good and practical hints for judging cattle: An animal possessed of a fine, long, and mossy coat, that is soft under the hand, has the indication of a good feeder, while the fat, as a rule, will be distributed, giving a good quality of fine-grained, mottled flesh. If the coat is short and fine, the animal will probably feed well, but there will be tendency to the formation of internal fat, instead of that uniform distribution throughout the system which is desirable. A hunch, coarse, wiry coat is an indication of poor feeding qualities and of late maturity.

Mr. John Bright has made a calculation and found that one bushel of corn planted 3 1/2 feet each way, is sufficient for 5 acres, and planted 4 feet each way will cover 7 acres. There are, he says, 70,000 grains in a bushel, and it requires 14,400 to plant an acre.—Interior Journal.

A. M. Purdy says: "It may not be generally known that apple seeds, sown in the fall where a hedge is desired, in four or five years form an impenetrable hedge. They should be clipped back two or three times, with a knife or hedge shears, to grow low and stocky."

"I believe," said a lady, "that there is no sadness so deep and all-pervading as the sadness which one experiences after being defeated at croquet. Why, I have felt so gloomy for the first hour after defeat that a proposal of marriage from a crown prince, if made at such a moment, would be repelled with a short answer. The presence of a diamond ring," she continued, "might awaken joy in my heart, but I am sure nothing else would."

The Banana.

Mr. Dilke believes that the banana plant is one of the great curses of tropical countries, because it will support life with no labor. It grows as a weed and hangs down its bunches of ripe, tempting fruit into your lap as you lie in its cool shade. "It will make nothing; you can eat it raw or fried, and that is all; you can eat it every day of your life without becoming tired of its taste; without suffering in your health; you can live on it exclusively. The terrible results of the plentiful possession of this tree are seen in Ceylon, at Panama, in the coast-lands of Mexico, at the Auckland, in New Zealand. At Pienir's Island the banana-tree has been the industry from the death there is much lip Christianity, but no practice, to be got from a people who possess that fatal plant. The much-needed corn cannot come near it as a devil's agent."

A Failure!

Any attempt to produce a perfume in this or any other country that can surpass Dr. Price's Unique Perfumes will prove a failure, for Dr. Price's perfumes are as fresh and sweet as the flowers from which they are made, and cannot be improved.

Female Suicides.

Poor fruit women! How sad the life and how terrible the death of many. The midnight plunge, the love's leap, the bloody dagger, the poison's cruel and insidious work, the executioner's axe, and the guillotine's cold steel, are all too common to the women of this world. While mother and daughter are sitting at the dinner table, the mother is plotting to poison her daughter's husband, and the daughter is plotting to poison her mother's husband. The result is often the same: a lifeless body in a coffin, and a broken heart in a woman's breast.

Too Much Physic.

Too many people are killing themselves with physic. They are taking too much of it, and it is doing them more harm than good. They are taking it for everything, and it is making them worse. They are taking it for colds, for headaches, for indigestion, for constipation, for everything. They are taking it for nothing, and it is making them worse. They are taking it for everything, and it is making them worse. They are taking it for nothing, and it is making them worse.

Swamp Chills.

This species of chills are generally more difficult to eradicate than any other. The malarial fever is a more violent character, producing more delirium than with a tendency to remission. The whole system becomes affected, the head aches, the heart and lungs ache, and there is a general malaise. The patient is unable to do anything, and the only relief is to be found in the use of quinine. It is a powerful tonic, and it is the only remedy for this disease.
